ATHENAEUM 1968

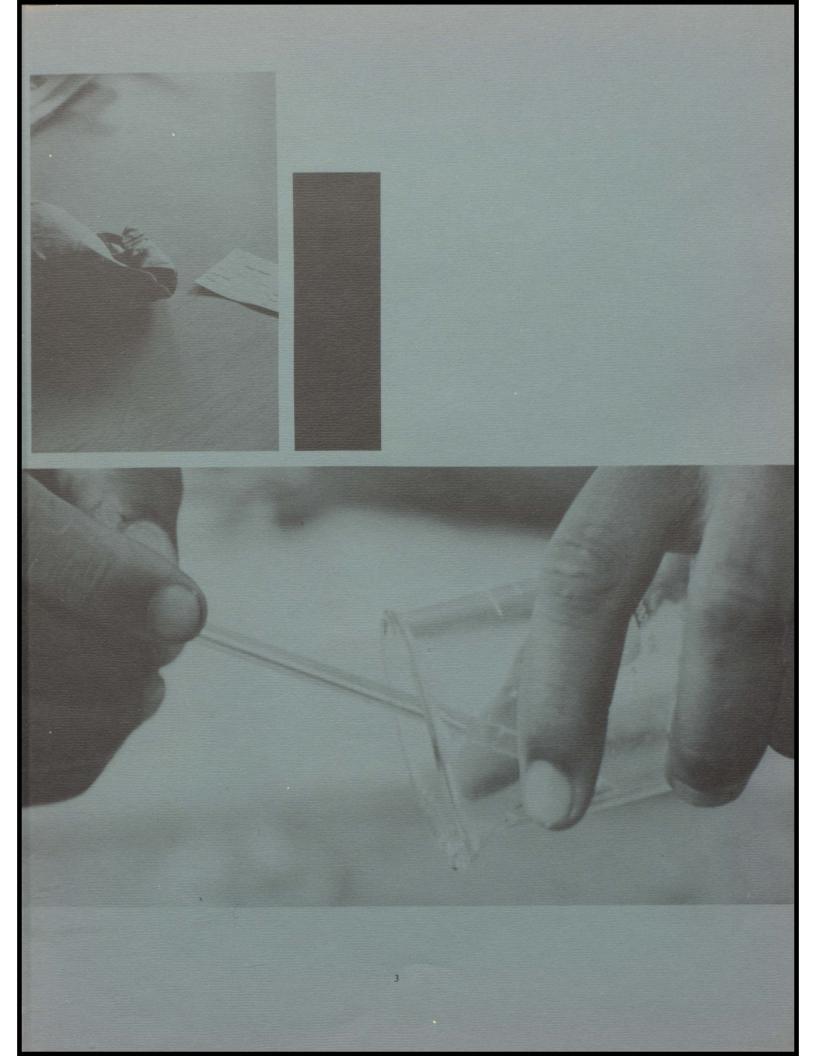

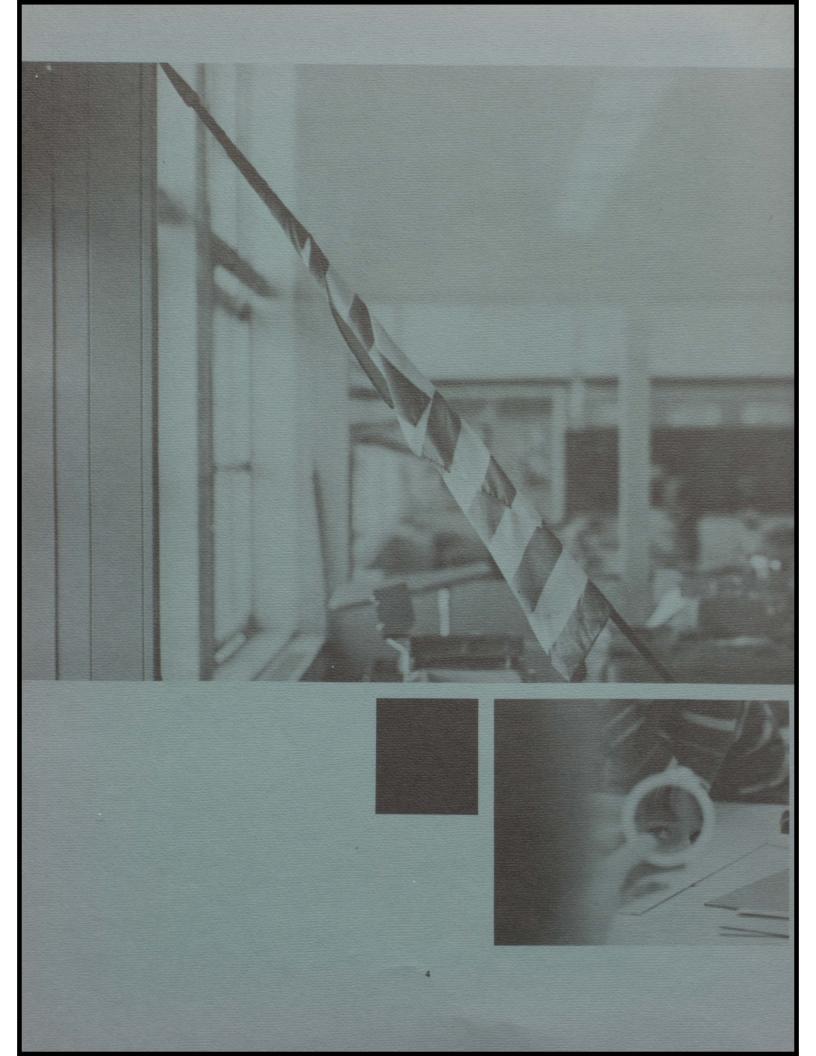

"To dream the impossible dream . . . " These years at Barringer have taught us to dare.

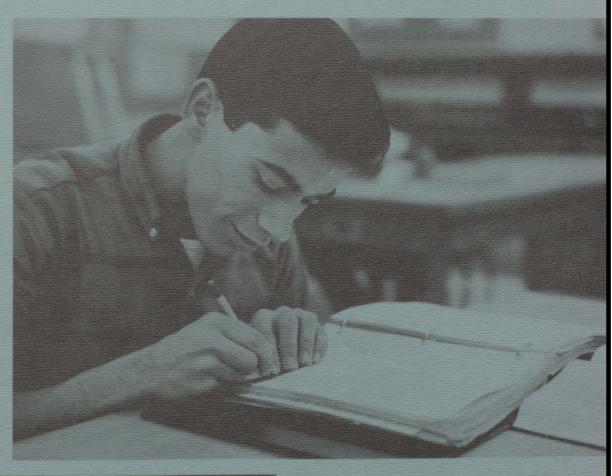

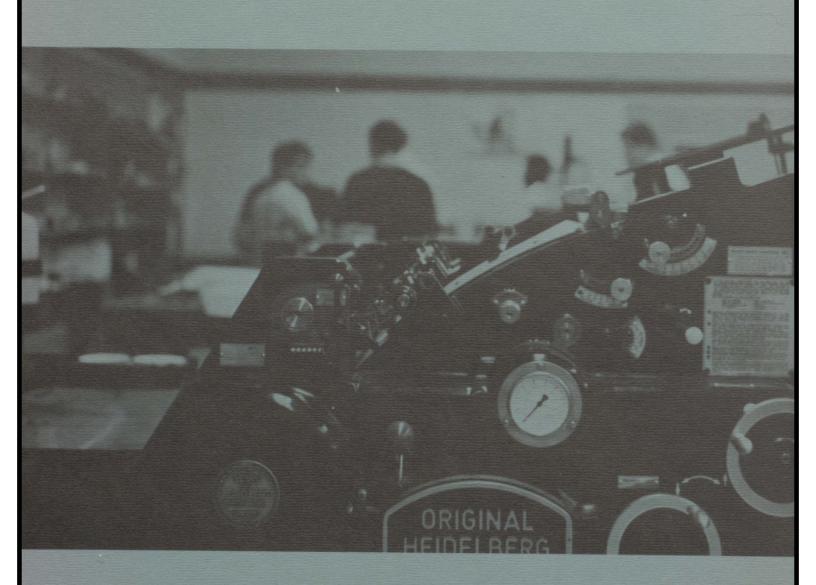

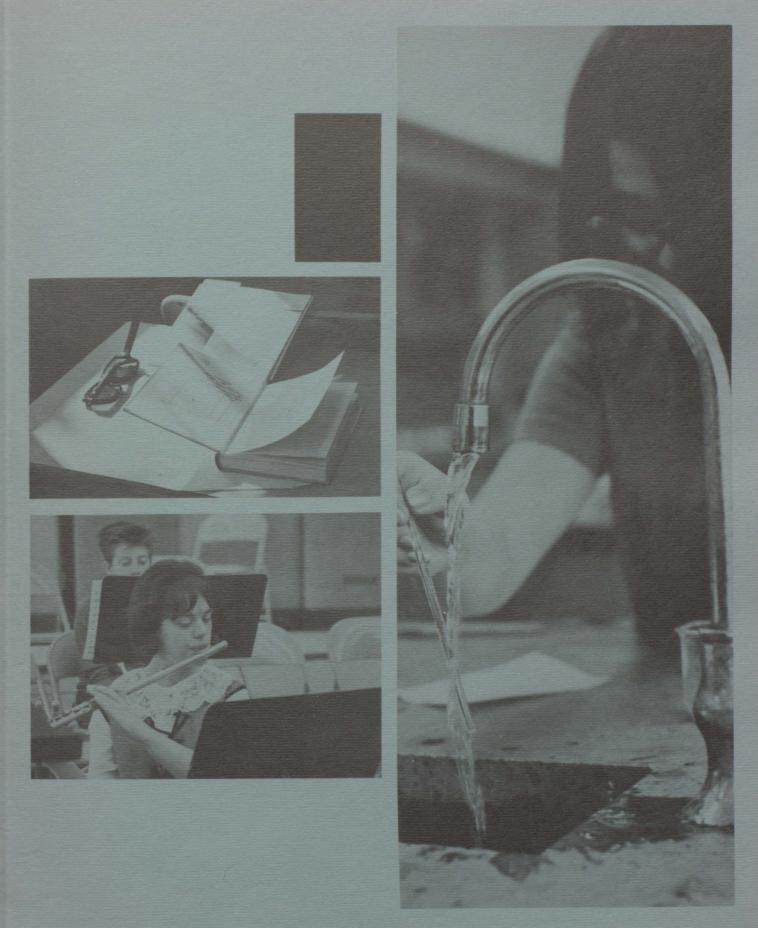

They have allowed us to develop our ideals . . .

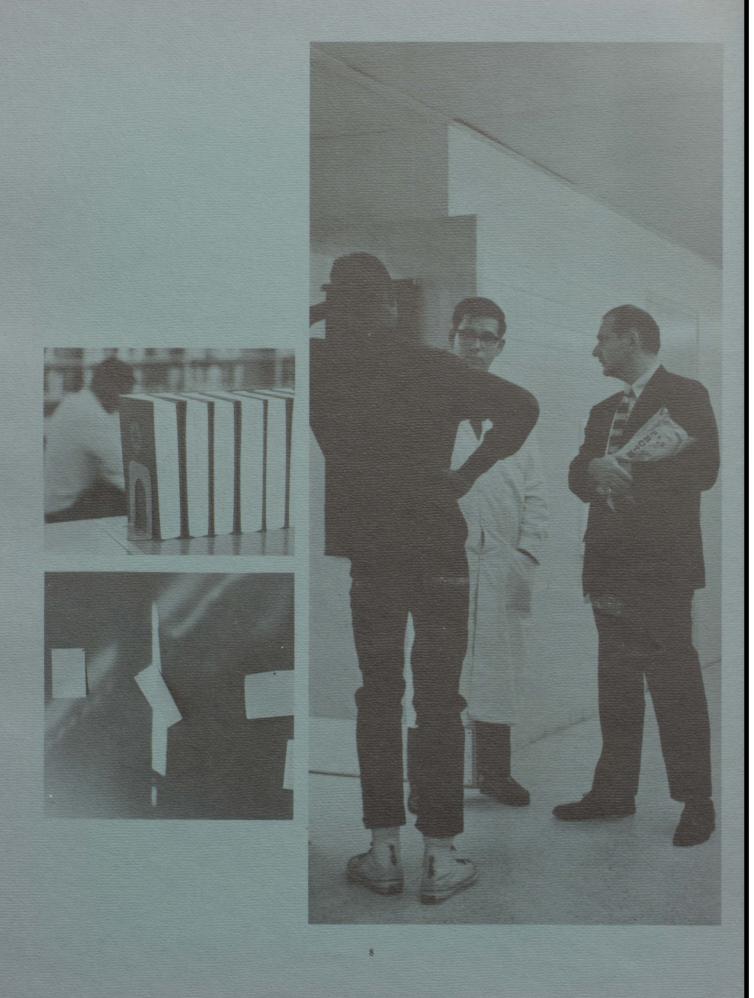

... to seek, to learn, to believe in ourselves ...

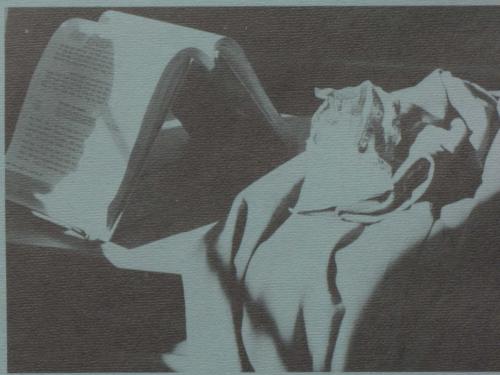

... to strive to make the world ... our world ... a better place in which to live.

We believe that nothing is impossible!

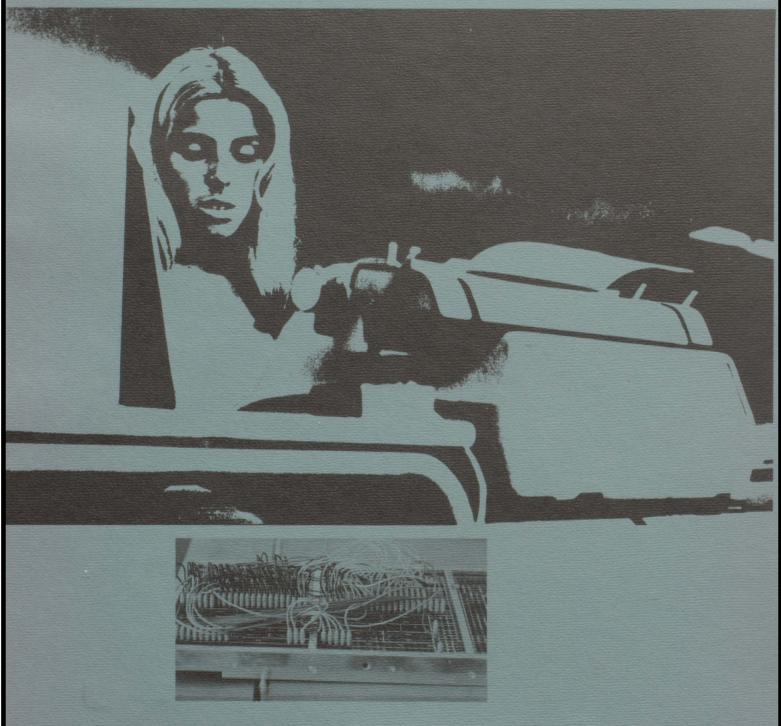

Many of us will succeed in anything we attempt.

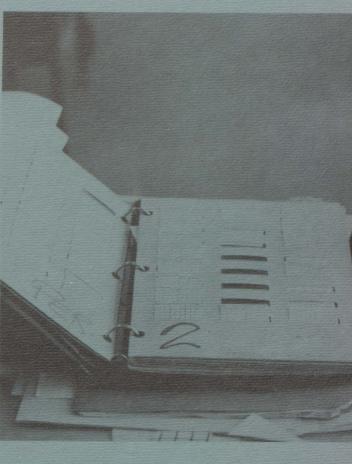

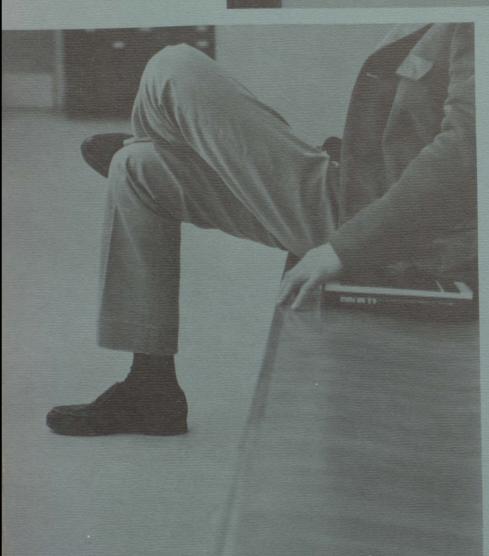

Leaving Barringer marks the end of a very special part of our lives, but graduation also marks the beginning of greater, more exciting challenges which must be met.

. . . the impossible will take a little while."

APPRECIATION

We dedicate this yearbook to the "enlightened human beings who know something private but beautiful that lies outside the range of ordinary experience," and who have awakened us by giving of their knowledge and of themselves.

ENVOY

When we first undertook the task of writing the 1968 ATHENAEUM, we had considerable difficulty selecting a theme. We searched for a theme which would tell the story of our endeavors in high school and our hopes for the future. We found that honorable men of vision had a dream in which they believed — a dream they sought, throughout their lives, to make a reality, undaunted by disappointments and setbacks. The example set by such men taught us the lesson that a worthy dream appears to direct a human being toward a meaningful and rewarding life. What better way for man to leave his "signature" on the sands of time! Thus "The Impossible Dream" became the message.

Although we realize that "we cannot see the pattern

Although we realize that "we cannot see the pattern of the future, we can see the duties that lie at hand and the value of hard and self-denying work in the present. We too, in our day, by what we do, can help to shape the course of history." If we are motivated by this conviction, conceivably we can help bring about the kind of world in which a man is judged "by the content of his character." We face the future determined to try. We believe that "the word 'impossible' is only in the dictionary of fools."

Beginning our high school years as the first freshman class in the new Barringer, we are now proud to be members of the first graduating class. These years have been enlightening, rewarding, sometimes shattering, occasionally shocking. As freshmen we faltered, as sophomores we sought, as juniors we joined, as seniors we succeeded. We succeeded in arriving at a wiser and fuller understanding of what our commitment to ourselves and to life should be because of our Barringer experiences. We participated and excelled in academic, social, and athletic activities. We trust that Barringer can take pride in our contribution, now and in the future. We made many meaningful friendships whose value "cannot be measured though the worth be known."

Let us join in bidding farewell to our Alma Mater and to one another.

Four years ago when we entered Barringer High School, we were given a student manual on whose cover we found a definition of the educated man. It read: "he who does what must be done, when it ought to be done, whether he likes it or not." Because we have matured, we understand the wisdom of these words. We have grown because we have been helped to grow through expert training, leadership, and guidance. We have been taught the importance that "taking roads less traveled by" can make "all the difference." We have been convinced that the valiant venture. We wish to contribute because we can and must. May our pursuits be glorious and our intentions demonstrated by worthy deeds.

In Memoriam

When Death Strikes . . .

When Death strikes down the innocent and young, for every fragile form from which he lets the panting spirit free, a hundred virtues rise, in shapes of mercy, charity, and love, to walk the world, and bless it.

Dickens

FRANK DEL MAURO

I threw a rose on a grave. Said a prayer for his soul. Scenes of past, and of now. A warm thought. A cold chill. All is still. He is gone.

Zoya

ANGELA RUSSO

Loveliest of lovely things are they
On earth that soonest pass away.
The rose that lives its little hour
Is prized beyond the sculptured flower.

Bryant

MICHAEL MASI

"Whom the gods love die young," was said of yore, And many deaths do they escape by this: The death of friends, and that which slays even more, The death of friendship, love, youth, all that is, Except mere breath.
